BILL ON PROPOSED CHANGES MAY GO TO ASSEMBLY THIS WEEK

A group of lawyers from this county and McCracken county met in Paducah Monday to discuss a proposed change in the judicial district, now made up of Marshall and McCracken counties.

Members of the bar associations of the two counties adopted a resolution calling for the establishment of McCracken county as a separate judicial district.

Under the proposed plan Marshall county would become a part of a new judicial district with Calloway and Livingston counties. This would take Calloway county from the third judicial district and Livingston from the fourth to make up the new district.

Attorneys Tom Marshall, of Paducah, and H. H. Lovett, Sr., of this city, were appointed to submit a proposed bill embodying the changes to the legislature this week.

The lawyers cited "increasing population and industrial and commercial development" of the two counties as making necessary the change.

The resolution said the terms now provided for holding court in Marshall county are entirely inadequate and that McCracken county's docket is so crowded that no time can be diverted to help out in this county.

According to reports here, a bill will probably be introduced in the legislature at Frankfort this week for the purpose of making the change. Some local lawyers believe that the proposed change will be made and a new district established. In the event the law is passed, Marshall, Calloway, and Livingston counties will have a new district Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney. It has been stated that should the proposed change be made into law, appointment of a Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney would be made by the Governor.

Under the present arrangement this county now has Co. Judge, Marshall, and June terms of court for both civil and criminal proceedings. It is believed that if the proposal is made into law that this county would get at least one added session of court each year.

Soil Conservation Notes By Herbert Anderson

The P and MA Committee is now accepting participants in the 1952 Agricultural Conservation Program. Conservation practices on which farmers expect to receive payment this year must have the approval of the committee before they are established.

Permanent practices must be surveyed and approved by the Soil Conservation Service before work is begun. After the work is completed, they must be checked by the SCS to see if they meet the required specifications. The permanent practices are on ponds, terraces, sod waterways, contouring crops, diversion channels, open ditches drainage, and tile drainage.

B. L. Alcock has several acres of land near Tatumville which burns over frequently. The timber on this land is damaged each time this happens. Several acres need to be set in pine trees.

Alcock plans to try to stop this damage to his land, his woods, and young trees by establishing a firebreak. A narrow branch bottom runs across the south side of this land. His plans are to cultivate this each summer and then sow a small grain cover crop each fall.

E. G. Moore, west of Calvert City, has made a complete conservation farm plan with the Marshall County Soil Conservation district.

Twenty-two acres are planned for pasture seeding this year as a start toward the establishment of the complete plan.

Rochie M. Jones and his neighbor Elwood Smith, plan to work together in the building of some concrete block structures to control erosion in a large gully which crosses their farms.

Erosion in large gullies can be controlled by vegetation. Vegetation will keep the gully from getting any larger, but it will fill slowly. Jones and Smith want their gully to fill quickly, so they are going to the extra expense of building the permanent structures.

Observations

(Old Kodger's Column)
A REPRESENTATIVE IN Frankfort introduces a bill to make it unlawful to wring a chicken's neck. I presume the man meant the feathered kind.

IT ISN'T HARD TO SEE A lot of neck wringing these days—or is it just ringing the neck? If the bill should pass and become a law that it won't interfere with wringing a person's goosle—if he or she doesn't do to suit a fellow.

WRINGING NECKS IS AS OLD as grandma, but since her day a new type of chicken has been developed that strays far from the roost to neck the ring, and so far as we know there is no law against it.

OUR LAWMAKERS GET IN A playful mood sometimes—that is why we have so many funny laws. Next thing we know a law will be passed forcing cooks to fry the springer with feathers on so they won't scorch the meat.

WONDER WHY THE MAN wanted a law against wringing chicken necks—the poor thing would die anyway, whether we use an ax, hatchet or some other method. There is only a few seconds difference between the wringing or chopping. Lots of folks these days do not have a hatchet and their axe is used on human beings.

ANYWAY IT IS MY HUMBLE opinion the Legislature should stay out of the chicken business, but if the law is passed, let it apply to old hens only—nobody wants to (w)ring the neck of an old hen—the axe is better on toughnecks.

IF YOU LIKE FRIED chicken and don't care whether it is a good law or not, now is a good time to go to Frankfort and protest or inform your officials—how you feel about your young pullets, letting the legislators know how you feel about wringing necks. It may be possible to amend the bill so that chloroform may be the best way out. A better way would be to electrocute your pullets and save trouble by having them fried fresh at death.

IF IT IS DECIDED TO electrocute instead of wringing—what about dumplings or chicken gravy? Some of these lawmakers must be anti-chickenists. There is one point in favor of the axe way—a chicken can dodge the axe and draw a few more breaths, whereas the wringing method does the job and leaves most of the juicy neck for dumplings, etc., if any.

MOST OF OUR CHICKENS have gone to roost anyway and no matter what the Legislature decides about necking the chickens, all pullets and old hens will have to be denecked or we will have to forget about fried or baked chicken—stewed or otherwise.

"I'd Rather Sleep Out in the Street in this country than have the best job they've got in a foreign country!

"After you've been in a foreign country and seen how other people live you realize this is a good country! Everybody's got equal rights. That's why I like it.

"A young fellow can come up and get a good job with this Company. The one thing I see is that a working man has got as good a chance as an executive in this country. If you worked in a foreign country, you'd have to be 'born' an executive!"

That's Maintenance Foreman Ken Dodson talking—talking about his job with Texas Gas, and the way America has of letting him choose it himself, stay with it—and grow with it.

If you should talk to a Texas Gas employee in your community you might find his sentiments a lot like those of Ken Dodson. For Ken is a typical Texas Gas man. His observations reported here may help you to know the men and women of Texas Gas—and the Company itself—a little better.

As maintenance foreman with Texas Gas at its Hardinsburg, Kentucky, Compressor Station, Ken Dodson's big responsibility is "keeping the machinery going." His station is one of many whose giant engines pump natural gas from Texas and Louisiana to thousands of homes and industries in the Big River and Appalachian regions. These stations are "in business" 24 hours a day, every day.

Before joining Texas Gas, Ken was a mechanic in Army Ordnance in Italy, keeping trucks rolling. That, plus a bent for mathematics, equips him well for his busy Texas Gas job. "Mathematics is a big thing in Texas Gas," says Ken, who must compute many "problems" every day. "I was interested in mathematics back in high school and it was always easy for me. Sure helps me here!"

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH FOREMAN

SCRIPTURE: Mark 9:2; 10:35-45; 14:26-49; Luke 8:41-42; 9:40-49; 12:35-37; Acts 4:13-22

DEVOTIONAL READING: Psalm 91

Secret of Courage

Lesson for February 24, 1952

Dr. Foreman

THERE are different kinds of courage. One is physical, either enduring pain or enduring the prospect of it. Another is moral, enduring ridicule or the prospect of it. Some occasions call for both kinds. Just as there are different kinds of courage, so there are different causes of it. Physical courage may be in some cases no more than the result of ignorance.

A passenger on a boat during a storm said to an old salt: "I'm not a bit afraid. The old Irish seaman snuffed. 'Them as knows nawthin' fears nawthin'," he said.

Men who have been in combat can recall some character who lacked all the virtues but one; he was never afraid. Physical courage can even be instilled by drugs or by rum. But moral courage cannot be induced by drugs, alcohol or otherwise.

It takes more than a tough nervous system to stand up against slander, hatred and ridicule. Some men who can take a razor-blade and calmly operate on themselves for snake-bite, cannot stand the sight of human snakes who try to hiss them down.

The Inner Circle

JESUS was always on the lookout for brave men. Indeed, he made brave men.

There were three men in his innermost circle—Peter, James and John. They were men of quite different temperaments; tradition reports that they differed widely in age also. But for whatever reasons, Jesus treated these men differently from the other nine.

That is, he kept them close to him on certain occasions when the rest were left behind or shut out. These three were his only companions at the mount of transfiguration. They were the only three he allowed in the room where he brought Jairus' little girl back to life. They were the three he took with him into the garden of Gethsemane to share his agony. They failed him there—they failed him at other times as well. But the point is that Jesus kept on with them, he did not give them up as hopeless cowards, he gave them more of himself than he gave to any other mortals in his time.

It was as if the Master had said to himself, these men, at least, shall know me. And though they failed him, the time came when they did not fail.

Our story in Acts shows how these men stood up against odds; against all the weight of popular opinion, all the force of law, all the attack from the leaders of society, these men stood up with a simple courage. They showed both physical and moral courage at the same time.

And even their enemies, surprised and baffled and blind as they were, understood the secret of their courage; they knew that they had "been with Jesus."

Heroes Without Medals

NOT all heroes wear medals. To this very day there are Christians who show the same kind of courage made famous by Peter and John. When a minister in Louisiana or Kentucky speaks out against the gambling which has become an octopus in his community; when he not only risks a dynamite bomb on his front doorstep from the gambling lords, but the name of "crackpot" from his neighbors; when the ministerial association of Gary, Ind., dares to stand up against powerful business interests in that city in the name of decent housing for the poor; when a Frank Graham of North Carolina dares to stand for Christian fairness to the Negro even when it means continual slander and political defeat; when Kefauver dares to stand up against corruption; you can be sure that the secret of such courage is the old one: these men have been with Jesus.

The story of Christian missions is full of such things. More than fifty years ago a heathen mob was about to tear a missionary named Pitkin to ribbons. They asked him if he had anything to say first. "Yes," he said, "tell my son to come out here and finish my work."

They killed him; but the son did come. And one of his first converts was a man who as a boy had seen the elder Pitkin die. He had never been able to forget that kind of courage.

In our own time another missionary, with the axe literally above his head, was asked: Aren't you afraid?—Afraid of what? he said. If you kill me I shall go straight to heaven.

CARMEL, N. Y.—A new baby chick has a "coming-out party" at its new L.P.-Gas brooder home with a celebrity namesake as its host. "Chic" Johnson, of the Olsen and Johnson stage and TV comedy team, cuddles the new-comer. Johnson starts 5,000 broilers every four weeks on his modern, 800-acre farm here. He uses L.P.-Gas fuel (also known as butane, propane, bottled and tank gas) because it maintains a dependable, uniform heat and minimizes chick mortality.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our husband, father and grandfather (Estil Edwards) who departed this life Feb. 20, 1951.

Dear Estil we are lonely here Since you have crossed the tide But your noble record seems to cheer.

While we wait on the stormy side Earth has lost many charms for me

Since you have gone away But Heaven will the brighter be Since you have gone to stay.

We miss your smiling face, We miss your words of cheer; We miss you all about the place We miss you everywhere.

We miss you in the early morn, We see your vacant chair; We miss you when the day is gone.

When we say our evening prayer, And so we are parted for a while.

To meet in greater splendor These tears and cares will seem worth, while

When we meet you at home up yonder.
